POSTKARTE.

CROMWELL'S FORT or, as it is also called, the Citadel, is a short distance from the town close to the banks of the River Ness. It was erected by Oliver Cromwell in the year 1652 on which date he obtained possession of the town of Inverness. The Fort had accommodation for 1,000 men, the work occupying a period of five years, but was destroyed soon after the Restoration at the instigation of the Highland Chieftains.

As you admire this gentleman
I thought you'd like a picture of his fort!!! We turn on Lenses South as Semoleay & hope the time ^{on} the Sat. Shua but this h.c. to get it in the envelope
